First Published in 1990. Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an informa company.

This 2-volume work includes approximately 1,200 entries in A-Z order, critically reviewing the literature on specific topics from abortion to world systems theory. In addition, nine major entries cover each of the major disciplines (political economy; management and business; human geography; politics; sociology; law; psychology; organizational behavior) and the history and development of the social sciences in a broader sense.

Persuasive essays, also called written arguments, are among the most common writing assignments and are used across the curriculum. Yet, despite their common use, many students struggle with the basics of creating a compelling, persuasive argument. Focusing on the four keys to persuasive writing, this booklet uses a step-by-step method to start with an assignment and end with a final draft. By following the clear examples and relying on the included templates, the writer will be able to generate a solid piece of persuasive writing on any topic. Table of Contents: How to Use This Booklet A Special Note about Rogerian Argument Step One: Understand the Assignment Step Two: The Working Outline Step Three: The Thesis Statement Checklist: Eight Things That Can Change Your Grade Step Four: The Introductory Paragraph Step Five: Body Paragraphs Checklist: How to Test Paragraph Organization and Development Step Six: Counter-Arguments Step Seven: Refutations Step Eight: The Conclusion Paragraph Step Nine: The Final Draft The First Layer: Revising Out Loud The Second Layer: Sentence Triage The Third Layer: "Find" Searches Fourth Layer: The Fine Points

In the county schools, students are assessed every nine weeks based on a writing prompt using a rubric supplied by the county, but the students are often taught using Writer's Workshop. This action research attempted to determine if Writer's Workshop and the use of writing prompts have different effects on first graders' writing ability and attitudes. Eighteen students (N=18) in a first grade class were randomly split into two groups, and during a 5-week period each group was taught writing in a different method. One group received instruction on writing a persuasive paper using a prompt, and another received instruction on writing a persuasive paper with a free-choice of topic. The students were then assessed on their writing ability and attitude towards writing at the end of instruction. A series of t-tests and item analysis was conducted to compare writing ability and attitude between the two groups. The results showed that both Group A (prompted) and Group B (free-choice) experienced a decline in overall attitude about writing over the course of the study. Group A (prompted), however, experienced more of a decline than Group B (free-choice). It appears that students get slightly more enjoyment out of choosing their topic than being told what to write. The overall scores on the final persuasive writing showed that students taught using a prompt scored better than those with free-choice (11.56 greater than 9.78). The only subcategory where Group B (free-choice) scored higher than Group A (prompted) was in conventions. (Ideas: 4.89 greater than 3.56; Organization 2.56 greater than 2.11; Style 2.22 greater than 2.00; Conventions: 1.89 less than 2.11). It also shows that students who write better enjoy the writing process more. Overall, the scores on the Writing Assessment were better from those students receiving a prompt. When students are given the freedom to write what they choose, they have a more positive attitude towards writing. This study indicates that free choice writing and prompted writing both have a place in the classroom. In order to teach a specific type of writing (i.e. persuasive, narrative, informational) students need prompts and clear instructions. However, if we are to foster a life-long love of writing, classroom teachers need to set aside time for students to write what they want to write about and share with others. Elementary Writing Attitude Survey and Persuasive Writing Rubric--Grade 1 are appended. (Contains 9 tables and 1 figure.).

Free Speech is a philosophical treatment of a topic which is of immense importance to all of us. Writing with great clarity, wit, and genuine concern, Alan Haworth situates the main arguments for free speech by tracing their relationship to contemporary debates in politics and political philosophy, and their historical roots to earlier controversies over religious toleration. Free Speech will appeal to anyone with an interest in philosophy, politics and current affairs.
