In May 2016, the Health Secretaries of the States and Union Territories of India gathered in the capital and issued "The Delhi Commitment on Sustainable Development Goals for Health". Among others, the document acknowledged the need to invest in health data collection, analysis and research so that these can properly inform government policies and strategies necessary to address the various challenges facing India's healthcare. The contributors explore: how paper-based tests can be widely distributed and utilized by semi-skilled personnel; how close to commercial applications the technology has become, and what is still required to make paper-based diagnostics the game-changer it can be. The technology is examined through the lens of the World Health Organization's ASSURED criteria for low-resource countries (Affordable, Sensitive, Specific, User-friendly, Rapid and robust, Equipment-free, and Deliverable to end-users). Outlines how semi-skilled personnel across a variety of fields can implement paper-based diagnostics
